FOOTLIGHT CLUB'S FIRST PERFORMANCE NOV. 23

The Bethel Footlight Club has set the date of their first performance, "I Like Your Nerve," for Tuesday evening, Nov. 23th.

"I Like Your Nerve" is a dazzling comedy that never touches the ground. The scene of the action is laid in the lounge of the Shady Greens Hotel where events happen fast and furious up to the grand finale. Just how it turns out makes fun, thrills and comedy all intermingled up to the final satisfying moment of the play. The cast have done much work in developing difficult characterizations and working out excellent comedy situations.

The parts are: Mary Newton, secretary to Mrs. Sturgeon (Pauline Brown); two saucy guests, Cora and Della (Celia Gorman and Virginia Little); overbearing Mrs. Sturgeon (Eva Browne); Countess Divani (Mona Wentzel); and the comedy role of Lucy (Naomi Bean), who with Oscar Oop (Norris Brown), makes the comedy team. Other men's roles include Jimmy Anderson who gets himself in trouble (Dr. Hood); hard-boiled McCafferty the pride of the force (Earle Eldredge); the smooth Dr. Tobin (Fitz Vail); the biased desk clerk (E. Wheeler); and Peewee, "the best looking bell-hop in these parts" (Royden Kiddy).

It is hoped the public will join with these players to make this project of the "Bethel Footlight Club" a success. This organization is new and at present represents only a small part of Bethel's talent. Many more people will be invited to join the club as work progresses on the forthcoming plays. The project is a community affair and only by the support of the community can it be successful.

CARS LEAVE SLIPPERY ROADS

Last Saturday evening's snow storm and following cold weather made the roads slippery in many places and caused many minor accidents. At present there remain a few dangerous places, but no serious results have been reported.

During the storm Saturday evening, while en route from Berlin to Portland a Durant sedan driven by Morris McCarty of Berlin ran into a telephone pole at the sharp corner near Herman Mason's. Neither Mr. McCarty nor Mrs. McCarty, who was with him, were injured, but the bumper of the car was badly bent and the engine was slightly damaged.

Sunday morning the Chevrolet sedan of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown of South Paris left the road at the same place. They were uninjured and the car was returned to the road with the help of passersby.

A Dodge eight sedan crashed into a large telephone pole on the curve below Tirrell's at Locke Mills Sunday, breaking the pole and damaging the car considerably. The passengers, four adults and a baby, were not harmed.

Harry Jordan and Miss Cora Bean escaped injury when Mr. Jordan's car and a Chevrolet coupe went through the fence east of the old saw mill site at South Bethel Tuesday morning. The car landed on its side and the occupants were forced to stay there until help arrived. The car was slightly damaged, but a crane was necessary to return it to the road.

SCHOOLMASTERS MEET AT RUMFORD

Not to Have Spelling Contest—Coach Anderson on Committee To Map Five Year Program

The November meeting of the Oxford County Schoolmaster's Association was held at the Stephens high school building Thursday evening, Nov. 9, and was one of the best and most largely attended in the history of the association. A chicken pie banquet was served in the school cafeteria by the women teachers of the high and junior high schools and following the banquet these ladies were given a rising vote of thanks.

After the banquet, the men went to the auditorium where a business meeting was held with the president, H. E. Redding, Superintendent of the Buckfield schools, presiding. Several extra curriculum activities were discussed and it was voted to hold the annual Oxford County boys' track meet at Hebron Academy May 26, and the Girls' Play Day at Norway on May 13. The finals for the Oxford County Prize Speaking will be held at Caledonia Friday, May 4. It was voted that the cup for the county type-writing and shorthand contest that has been won by Norway High for three years, be the permanent property of that school and that a new one be secured for future contests.

The winter sports will be held at Rumford in conjunction with the winter carnival Feb. 17, and it was voted not to have a county spelling contest. A committee was appointed consisting of Frank McGouldrick, superintendent of schools of Dixfield, Principal V. M. Sampson of Norway, and Coach Ordell H. Anderson of Bethel, to make out a five-year activity program and it was voted to have the next meeting at Bethel Dec. 6.

Following the business meeting, Rev. Frederic H. Young of Dixfield, gave a highly interesting illustrated lecture on the Century of Progress Exposition. There were 85 slides shown of different buildings and scenes of the Exposition and also some of Niagara Falls, White Mountain scenes and of the Maine Coast.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY INSTALLATION

The American Legion Auxiliary held its installation in the Legion rooms last Thursday evening. The Auxiliary was honored to have "the mother of the Unit," Mrs. Agnes Bradley, National Committee-woman, of Rumford as their installing officer. Officers installed were:

President—Mrs. Carrie French. First Vice Pres.—Mrs. Blanche Howe. Second Vice Pres.—Mrs. Olive Heath. Secretary—Mrs. Olive Lurvey. Treasurer—Mrs. Lennie Howe. Historian—Mrs. Lola Forbes. Chaplain—Mrs. Maude Bean. Sargent-at-arms—Mrs. Bernice Heath.

After the installation a short business meeting was held at which time it was voted to hold a public card party in the Legion rooms, Friday night, Nov. 17. Following the meeting Mrs. Bradley gave an interesting talk. She told some interesting features of the National Convention which she attended at Chicago and explained the stand which the Legion is taking regarding the recognition of Russia and the veteran's bonus. She also congratulated the unit on their work for the past year. Mrs. Rose Blason, Dept. Chairman of Unit Activities, and Mrs. Grace Coburn, Dept. Chairman of Americanism, gave short talks regarding their work.

A social time followed the meeting and refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

TOWN VOTES TO BUY NEW TRACTOR

Selection to be Made by Selectmen and Road Commissioner—Cost Approximately $5,000.

Some thirty voters assembled at Odeon Hall last Friday afternoon and decided that it would be good business to buy a new plow and tractor for use on the roads this winter. Frank A. Brown, chairman of the Board of Selectmen submitted figures showing the amount of money spent for repairs during the past four years. He explained that while the present tractor would be able to take care of the plowing for a year or two yet, the plow is practically beyond repair, and if a new one were purchased to be used with the old tractor there would be an additional expense of three or four hundred dollars to fit it for use with the old machine.

At the present time it is expected that the town will receive a considerable allowance on the old tractor so that the net cost to the town will not be much over $5,000. It was voted to finance the payment for the new equipment by notes to be paid as follows: $2,000 in 1935, $2,000 in 1936, and the balance in 1937. The choice of plow and tractor was left with a committee consisting of the Board of Selectmen and the Road Commissioner.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The troop met last Monday evening for the first time in the Gould gymnasium. The ample facilities gave the boys the advantage of patrol work, also cooperative games.

This Saturday the Scouts are to distribute bags for the Red Cross. The bags are to be hung on doors and it is hoped that a hearty response in the shape of old clothes, shoes, etc., will be received.

The Scouts are now working on a kite project which will be the project taken to the Jamboree in the spring.

The members of the grand jury were instructed by Justice Fisher after which they were placed in charge of Deputy Sheriff William L. Frothingham and retired to the grand jury room with County Attorney McCarthy. The jury rose at four o'clock Thursday afternoon, returning 17 indictments.

Hastings Trespass Case
The trespass case of Edward E. Hastings of Fryeburg against O. K. Day and David H. Green of Harrison was opened Tuesday afternoon by Hugh W. Hastings and Alton C. Wheeler for the plaintiff. It was the contention of the plaintiff that the defendants trespassed on land belonging to him while duck hunting on Lower Kezar Lake in Lovell in the fall of 1931. The meadow in question had been posted by Mr. Hastings to avoid a fire hazard and to create a game refuge for ducks and other birds. Mr. Hastings claimed that the land was part of the mainland, while Mr. Day and Mr. Green contended that it is part of the lake. Waldo Seavey of Lovell, who had been appointed by the court to make a survey of the land made an explanation of blueprints showing that the elevation of the meadow or bog for some distance varied from one to four feet above the mean level of the lake. The jury went to Lovell Wednesday forenoon and viewed the land. Upon their return the case was resumed with a cross examination of Mr. Seavey and deposition of Edward Weston, a surveyor familiar with the land. On Thursday George H. Dunn, a naturalist, was on the stand, describing the plant life and the formation of the land in the vicinity. The jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, damages of $1.00 being awarded on three counts against Mr. Green and one against Mr. Day.

THE LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS

Follicia Hemans

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed.

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On the wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They, the true-hearted came;
Not with the roll of the stirring drums,
And the trumpet that sings of fame.

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear;
They shook the depths of the desert gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amid the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free!

The ocean eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam;
And the rocking pines of the forest
Roared, and the welcome home!

There were men with hoary hair,
Amid that pilgrim band;
Why had they come in wither there,
Away from their childhood's land?

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth;
There was manhood's brow serenely high,
And the very heart of youth.

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine.

Ah! call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod;
They have left unstained what there they found,
Freedom to worship God.

THE FIRST SNOW-FALL

James Russell Lowell

The snow had begun in the gloaming,
And hushly all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With a silence deep and white.

Every pine and fir and hemlock
Wore ermine too dear for an earl,
And the poorest twig on the elm-tree
Was ridged inch deep in pearl.

From sheds now-roofed with Car-rara
Came Chanticleer's muffled crow,
The still rails softened to swan's-down
And still fluttered down the snow.

I stood and watched by the win-dow
The noiseless work of the sky,
And the sudden furies of snow-birds,
Like brown leaves whirling by.

I thought of a mound in Sweet Auburn
Where a little headstone stood;
How the flakes were folding it gently,
As did the robins the babes in the wood.

Up spoke our own little Mabel,
Saying, "Father, who makes the snow?"
And I told of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snow-fall,
And thought of the leaden sky
That arched o'er our first great sorrow,
When that mound was heaped so high.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud-like snow,
Flake by flake, healing and hiding
The scar that renewed our woe.

And again to the child I whispered,
"The snow that husheth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall!"

Then, with eyes that saw not, I
Kissed her;
And she, kissing back, could not know
That my kiss was given to her sister.

Folded close under deepening snow,
I

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE

by W. B. Krueck

Formerly Professor Animal Husbandry, Purdue University

Many flocks of pullets seem to be very badly infested with worms and parasites this particular fall. Although some of these pullet flocks may look relatively thrifty at the present time, worm infestations are working upon them, lowering their vitality, and as they go into egg production with some added drain upon their bodies for egg production, it is bound to lower their vitality and weaken them further. When cold weather strikes pullets of this kind, they have very little resistance, go into moult quickly, and because of low vitality have a difficult time getting back into production.

Many people, in examining a flock for worm infestation, look only at the birds about ready to die. In most cases a bird of this kind will show no symptoms of a worm infestation to any great extent. In examining the birds, select a bird that has considerable flesh upon it, one that might possibly be fit to dress for consumption. Then take the intestinal tract and open it from the gizzard to the fecal pouches. If a worm infestation is present, it will be found in a bird of this kind.

Even though the infestation may be rather light, most poultrymen will find it desirable to give the birds a good worm treatment and thereby maintain their vitality. If the treatment is delayed and the worm infestation seems to increase, it will be more difficult for the flock to overcome the ravages of these parasites and production will be more severely affected as cold weather comes in. For all flocks that are being used for hatchery purposes, it is doubly important that the birds be free from parasites in order that the greatest vigor and vitality may be obtained in these flocks.

THE LANDING OF THE PILGRIMS

Felicja Hemans

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed.

And the heavy night hung dark
The hills and waters o'er,
When a band of exiles moored their bark
On the wild New England shore.

Not as the conqueror comes,
They, the true-hearted came;
Not as the roll of the stirring drums,
And the trumpet that sings of fame.

Not as the flying come,
In silence and in fear;
They shook the depths of the desert gloom
With their hymns of lofty cheer.

Amid the storm they sang,
And the stars heard, and the sea;
And the sounding aisles of the dim woods rang
To the anthem of the free!

The ocean eagle soared
From his nest by the white wave's foam;
And the rocking pines of the forest
Ran to their welcome home!

There were men with heavy hair,
And that pilgrim band;
Why had they come to wither there,
Away from their childhood's land?

There was woman's fearless eye,
Lit by her deep love's truth;
There was manhood's brow serene
In the light of the heart of youth.

What sought they thus afar?
Bright jewels of the mine?
The wealth of seas, the spoils of war?
They sought a faith's pure shrine.

Ah! call it holy ground,
The soil where first they trod;
They have left unstained what
there they found,
Freedom to worship God.

THE FIRST SNOW-FALL

James Russell Lowell

The snow had begun in the gloaming,
And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With a silence deep and white.

Every pine and fir and hemlock
Wore ermine too dear for an earl,
And the poorest twig on the elm-tree
Was ridged inch deep in pearl.

From sheds new-roofed with Cararra
Came Chanticleer's muffled crow,
The stiff rails softened to swan's-down
And still fluttered down the snow.

I stood and watched by the window
The noiseless work of the sky,
And the sudden flurries of snow-birds,
Like brown leaves whirling by.

I thought of a mound in Sweet Auburn
Where a little headstone stood;
How the flakes were folding it gently,
As did the robins the babes in the wood.

Up spoke our own little Mabel,
Saying, "Father, who makes the snow?"
And I told of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snow-fall,
And thought of the laden sky
That arched o'er our first great sorrow,
When that mound was heaped so high.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud-like snow,
Flake by flake, healing and hiding
The scar that renewed our woe.

And again to the child I whispered,
"The snow that husheth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall!"

Then, with eyes that saw not, I
Kissed her;
And she, kissing back, could not know
That my kiss was given to her sister,
Folded close under deepening snow.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1933.

The attitude of the chain stores
in regard to observance of Armistice Day leads us to submit the following sentiment which appeared in nearly the same form in a recent issue of a publication of nation-wide circulation: "Until the chain store identifies itself more closely with the small town's general welfare; until it shoulders and carries its legitimate share of the community burden; until each local branch can fall in line with local practices without having to ask the New York office first; until the chain store becomes an active, permanent and integral part of its town, and takes a loyal and genuine interest in the upbuilding of its community; until it acknowledges the fact that it owes something to the town which patronizes it; it has no just claim to local patronage, to say nothing of public respect."

Many a town that says "I do my best" really doesn't. This also fits the people who proclaim, "We do our part."

It has been a long time since the Citizen has recorded much about accidents at the Mason corner. Two or three years ago two signals were placed east of the corner and since that time there have been few accidents involving cars coming from that direction. One signal was installed to warn traffic in the opposite direction, and a dozen or more cars each year continue to crash in the ditch or against a pole
when they fail to complete the turn.

We admit that, as yet, no fatalities have occurred at this point, and some time has passed since
anyone has suffered serious injury,
but the fact remains that danger exists there. When the road is coated with ice the curve is not safe at any speed, and at any other time the condition of the road is such that it is very deceptive to one not familiar with it.

We wonder if the State is waiting for someone to be killed here before making any move toward improvement.

After prosperity returns may we expect a movement to pension the veterans of the C. C. C. Boston Transcript.

KIDS AND GUNS from Bridgton News

It always makes the cold shiver run up and down our back when we see a kid with a gun and we can't help wondering what a parent is thinking of when he allows a child to have a gun. The other day we met a couple of kids on the Tannery Bridge, each with a small rifle. We jumped to the conclusion that they were going off into the woods after small game and just to be funny we inquired if they had a hunting license. We got the raspberry from both. They maintained that they did not have to have a license—
"cause they were not old enough."
They seemed so cocksure of themselves that we did not care to enter

France Sends More Felons Into Exile

This rare photograph shows French felons, sentenced to imprisonment on the penal islands off the coast of South America, being transported from the wharf at Marseilles to the prison ship La Rochelle for the dreary journey and banishment. Some 200 of the most desperate of malefactors against French law were rounded up for the sea voyage, being the first contingent of French criminals so honored in more than two years.

Into an argument right then and there for the reason that we have become lost many times in the labyrinthian mazes of the fish and game laws. As a matter of fact no kid under sixteen years of age is allowed in the woods and fields or upon the waters of the state, with firearms, without a hunting license, unless actually accompanied by parent or guardian. By the same token a kid under 16 is not granted a license unless his application is accompanied by the written consent of the parent and guardian. The general statute law of the state goes even further than that. It forbids any person to sell, give away or to furnish to any child under 16 years of age any firearm or dangerous weapon—except under very specific provisions. Not only that, but the statute forbids the selling or giving away to any child under 14 years of age any air rifle and there are no exceptions to that prohibition. But law or no law kids under sixteen years of age are too young to be entrusted with firearms, both for their own sakes and for the safety of others, and it is up to the parents to see that they do not have them.

The ability to progress is based on one's recognition of the imperfection in his work. As long as one cannot see the imperfections there is no hope of progress. As long as the imperfection may be seen and there remains desire and energy to correct them one has hope of progress.

THE DEATH CLARE

In a Kentucky cemetery there is a grave stone erected for P. H. Nolan, Assistant State Game Warden. After reciting the facts of his career, it is stated on the marble, "The accident was caused by the glaring lights of a passing automobile."

The time is coming soon, says the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, when glaring lights will be outlawed. Many municipalities, and some states, are prescribing rules for the regulation of the lights.

In a recent survey conducted by the Travelers Insurance Company, it is set forth that from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. in 1932, there were 469,100 accidents in which 13,500 persons were killed, or 32 for every 1,000 accidents. From 6 p. m. to 6 a. m. there were 330,200 accidents, but 15,500 deaths, or 46 per 1,000. In other words, the death rate per accident was 43.7 per cent worse during darkness than in daylight. The figures would have been still more unfavorable if they had started at 5 p. m. instead of 6 p. m., particularly in winter.

Automobile accidents during dusk and darkness are more likely to result in serious injuries and death because vision is reduced by inadequate illumination and because headlight glare from approaching cars momentarily blinds drivers.

Engineering societies are working out devices to prevent direct rays of headlights from striking eyes of motorists, the object being to reduce the "glare hazard" to a minimum. If this problem can be solved, an important contribution to safety will have been made.

We have frequently heard people say things would have been better now if the United States had not come into the war. How do they know they would be better? How can they tell what things would be like? It is just possible they would be worse than they are now.

ARE SAVINGS NO LONGER SAFE

The mania for originating new tax methods to pay for governmental extravagance reached a peak in New York City with a proposal to pick out a handful of businesses for a new brand of class taxation. The financial, real estate, insurance, savings bank and public utility worlds were astounded.

The proposal would tax life insurance, "one quarter of one per cent of such portion of the value of its total capital, investment and gross assets as shown by its books as its receipts on account of policies of insurance in the City of New York bear to its total receipts."

This is inequitable taxation of funds held in trust for millions of people.

The great proportion of life insurance policyholders are persons of small means. Life insurance is often their only safeguard for families and dependents. But politicians point to the accumulated savings of these small policyholders pooled in an insurance company and say, "Let's tax this rich corporation." They do not tell the people that such a plan is an installment method of destroying savings of the masses.

Supposing other cities and states adopted the tactic proposed in New York City. What would happen to the savings of the nation? One hesitates to conjecture.

Have we reached a point where no investment is sacred; where politicians can confiscate private funds to fill public treasuries which their mad schemes have depleted? Unless such class legislation and confiscatory taxation of private savings and investments, are stopped in this nation, private property rights, that great heritage of American citizens, will have disappeared.

Thirteen persons were killed and 102 injured in 134 motor vehicle accidents during October investigated by the State Highway Police in Maine.

12.7% OF FARM INCOME GOES TO PAY TAXES

In summarizing a report on a study of farm property taxation in Maine, Charles H. Merchant, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Maine, says: "The average tax levied on apple farms included in the study during 1924 to 1926 amounted to 20.52% of the farm income; on blueberry farms in 1926, to 10.83%; on dairy farms in 1927, to 15.92%; on potato farms in Aroostook County for the three-year period 1928 to 1930, to 12.54%; on potato farms in Central Maine for the two years 1929 and 1930, to 8.58%; and on poultry farms in 1930, to 8.46%." The average property tax on the 422 farms included in the study amounted to 12.70% of the farm income. This shows the tax burden of the farmer in the principal agricultural regions of the State during various periods from 1924 to 1930.

Night Life For Chickens—Poultrymen Find It Pays

WHILE night life may be hard on human beings, it is fine for chickens—at least it pays the poultryman well. Investigators have found out that fowls must have long hours to lay well; hence, lengthening the day with electric lights during the winter months is advisable.

Given a 12-14 hour working day from October to April, hens eat more food and lay more eggs. Rarely is the cost of such lighting so excessive that profits do not result from the practice.

Recent studies at the National Institute of Poultry Husbandry, England, by Dr. R. T. Parkhurst, now poultry specialist for National Oil Products Company, show that

It is best to run the lights for a few hours both morning and evening because it keeps the hens on their regular summer schedule. However, where it is more convenient or economical the lights can be used only in the morning or only in the evening.

Furthermore, both American and British investigators have shown that hens over a year old do best when given light all night. Apparently when hens get older, they can stand more night life.

Birds in heavy lay need cod-liver oil in the ration; preferably an oil fortified with additional cod-liver oil vitamins, a tested concentrated source of vitamin D being very desirable. Short days mean fewer curative rays from the sun, but artificial illumination and the "anti-rachitic" factor of cod-liver oil will adequately substitute for lack of sunshine.

Someone has said that no man knows how honest he is until he is tempted.

Every depression brings with it a new set of economies for business and the individual. Those who hold on to the economies after the depression will profit by them. Those who forget these economies, and revert back to former wasteful standards will not profit because of the depression. The lesson, to do any good, must stay learned.
